To the Members of Webster Presbyterian Church:

Let me begin by saying that “I am sorry.”

I am truly sorry for my part in creating division in the church. I realize that my words and actions have caused pain, misunderstanding, and separation among the church. I deeply regret that I have allowed for these things to overshadow the love and unity that Christ calls us to. I ask for God’s forgiveness and for the Holy Spirit to help me and others to lay aside differences, forgive one another, and work together in peace. I commit to listening with humility, seeking reconciliation, and living in a way that reflects the unity Jesus prayed for us to have.

“I was wrong.”

Over the past few months, I have been attempting to find ways to share a way to apologize for having not included our Session sooner when I encountered an issue with a member. I was wrong for not seeking their guidance sooner, which would have provided a much different outcome than what we are encountering now. “As much as it is possible, live in peace with everyone.” (Romans 12:18) I accept complete responsibility for what has transpired. I am committed to ensuring that I will continue to rely upon the advice that Session offers, and pray that in doing so, that peace and healing may prevail.

“Please forgive me.”

Over the past fifteen months I have been blessed to serve as your Interim, and I am determined to continue to strive to ensure that my time with you is focused on preparing the church for a new pastor. I remain committed to this as we move forward. It is my prayer that in doing so, our community may grow stronger together. It is in that spirit that I seek your forgiveness.

As our Lenten journey continues, I pray that the peace of God that surpasses all understanding, lead and guide our efforts, finding us faithful in all our endeavors.

Seeking your forgiveness and the peace of our Lord,

Rev. G. Todd Williams
